Most of what your state government says in public never gets covered.

Alabama is one of only four states where the legislature streams its meetings but doesn't record or archive them. Since 2023, the League of Women Voters of Alabama Education Fund has run The Alabama Channel to address this gap: a free, searchable archive of the Legislature's floor debates and committee meetings, sourced from the state's livestreams. In partnership with cicada.guide, over 1,230 meetings are being processed to offer features such as speaker-attributed transcripts, plain-language search, automatic legislation detection, and citation-ready clips. The project is currently in active development.

BUILT SO FAR

01 What the archive covers April 2020 – April 2026

PHASE 1 · IN PROGRESS

Everything the Legislature streams on its Alison system — floor debates and the committee meetings it carries — captured and kept, so the public record is never lost.

Floor sessions

Full House and Senate sessions, gavel to gavel.

Standing committees

Judiciary, Education, Fiscal Responsibility, Children & Senior Advocacy, and more.

Joint & conference

Joint legislative councils and conference committees.

02 Ask the archive

PHASE 2

Type a question the way you'd ask a colleague:

What did the bill sponsor say about HB 391 this session?

Was anything said about environmental regulations today?

Show me every time the broadband bill came up in committee.

What comes back — a plain-English summary of what was said, plus the specific speaker-attributed clips with timestamps and one-click "Open clip" for every quote.

03 Follow a member

PHASE 3

Once members are enrolled by voice profile, every statement they make in an indexed meeting gets attributed back to them — building a searchable record of what each official said, over time.

Every quote traced to who said it, and when.

NEWSROOM PREVIEW ACCESS

The public record shouldn't sit behind a paywall.
